THE CHUBU AREA, AIMING TO BE ONE THE MAJOR WORLD BASES OF THE AEROSPACE INDUSTRY

The Chubu area has been supporting the development of the aerospace industry as a leading cluster of aerospace industries in Japan. In December 2011, the Aichi and Gifu areas were designated as an international strategic zone where Asia's No. 1 Aerospace Industrial Cluster would be created. The area was expanded to Mie Prefecture in October 2013 and later to Nagano and Shizuoka prefectures.

The Chubu area leads the aerospace industry in Japan

The Chubu area is a leading base of the aerospace industry, manufacturing approx. 50% of aircraft and components and approx. 70% of airframe components in Japan. Many corporations are concentrated in the area, such as leading airframe manufacturers (Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, Ltd., Kawasaki Heavy Industries, Ltd., Fuji Heavy Industries, Ltd.), companies that manufacture and conduct research and development of carbon fiber composite materials (Toray Industries Inc. etc.), as well as suppliers of parts and machine tools.
